

St Barth's Le Barthelemy to Reopen in October

By Caribbean Journal Staff

St Barth's Le Barthelemy boutique hotel is planning an October relaunch, the property announced this week.

Le Barthelemy will be reopening on Oct. 28 with a host of new health and safety protocols that “preserve our unpretentious approach to our couture hospitality but that also ensure the highest standards of health and hygiene prescribed by world health organizations,” according to the hotel.

The 44-room boutique hotel is set in the Grand Cul de Sac neighborhood of St Barth.

The island of St Barth is reopening for tourism this week, subject to COVID-19 conditions on travelers.

Le Barthelemy first opened its doors in 2016.

For more, visit Le Barthelemy.

— CJ